

FLIGHT FOR ALLYSHIP

To provide more awareness and representation, Left Bank Brasserie will be partnering with Diversity in Food and Beverage to highlight under-represented winemakers. 15% of all proceeds from the sale of these wines will provide scholarships and grants to create a more diverse and inclusive food and beverage industry. This month, we are highlighting winemakers of the Indigenous American community and wine made in honor of them.

CAMINS 2 DREAMS, GRUNER VELTLINER, SPEAR VINEYARD, STA. RITA HILLS, CA 2020

After graduating with a Bachelor of Science degree in Enology from Cal State University Fresno, Tara Gomez started her first label, Kalawashaq' Wine Cellars, named for the village where her Chumash ancestors once lived. In 2010, her Chumash Tribe had purchased Camp 4 Vineyard and she started Kitá Wines, a small, premium winery in the Santa Ynez Valley where she is also currently the winemaker.

BRAVIUM, ROSÉ OF PINOT NOIR, ANDERSON VALLEY, CA 2020

Of Cherokee descent, winemaker Derek Rohlfss was gifted the name "Winter Hawk" as a young boy. Intuitively connected to the land, Cherokee means "those who live in the mountains," Derek has always felt a mysterious pull to nature, even as a child. To hear him tell it, the vineyard is his destiny. He doesn't view his path to winemaking as a conscious choice, but more of an undercurrent that quietly ushered him to where he belongs.
